

Hardy Plumbago

The Facts

Height: 1 - 1.5'
Spread: 1 - 1.5'
Sun: Partial sun
Water: Medium
Soil: Well drained
Growth Rate: Moderate

Unlike its annual cousin, Hardy Plumbago likes a little more shade in Oklahoma. Also unlike annual plumbago, it tends to stay lower to the ground. It can take a little more sun, but it's recommended it be in the morning. Brilliant, electric blue flowers displays on soft, dark green leaves. It spreads slowly, providing elegant and wonderful drifts of color. In fall the foliage display turns to vibrant hues of reds.

Plumbago is a versatile perennial lending well to work as a groundcover in perennial beds and as a 'spiller' for containers. The vibrant color this plant produces is second to none. It is a must-have for any landscape.
